Product colors and blends are illustrated as accurately as photo reproduction allows. Due to variables in processing, colors of actual units may not match exactly. Final color selection should be made from product samples. When choosing a manufactured color blend, several pieces of product should be viewed. Although great care was taken in the photography and reproduction of the pictures illustrated, accuracy of color is influenced by light, angles and time of day when photographs are taken. We strongly recommend that final selection of color be based on viewing several physical samples.
